11. In what ways did your study abroad experience affect your language skills?

Text Response
Before I went to Argentina, I spoke Spanish quite well, but after my time there, I spoke very comfortably, with a great accent, and at an advanced level. I was never confident saying I was fluent in Spanish until my semester abroad.
I took many classes in the target language (literature, linguistics, grammar, history, and art) which broadened my knowledge and ability to use the language. I also lived with a family that only spoke Spanish and therefore had to converse with them in Spanish.
Living with a host family and taking classes all in Spanish really improved my speaking skills primarily. It was also an invaluable experience

41. OVERALL EXPERIENCE IN LJMLWhat was the best thing that your degree in language provided for you?

Text Response
Getting to meet other students who were very passionate about and involved in a variety of international issues and projects.
I enjoyed being a Spanish major at PLNU and especially loved interacting with my professors. The emphasis on Spanish literature and writing analytical essays was the most beneficial to me because I currently teach AP Spanish courses (language and literature). In order to properly teach the material and guide students to develop the critical thinking skills needed in these courses, I first needed a strong background in the material. I learned much of the material and how to analyze it while majoring in Spanish at PLNU.
the best thing that this degree offered was the chance to Study Abroad as a required part of my course work.

42. How could the Department of Literature, Journalism and Modern Languages better serve the needs of its students?

Text Response
I would like to see more courses on translation and how to develop those skills. My Spanish skills are very strong, but translating (especially in front of an audience) is a whole new world.
Now that I am working I can see that we needed to practice speaking more within our classes. We could have also read more short works and less novels so that we could be exposed to more works, authors, time periods without overwhelming our work load.
