DEPARTMENT/SCHOOL: LJML

PROPOSAL I: ~~Change the WRI315 course description.~~

~~Current course description: WRI315 A study of rhetorical theory and its application to the student's own writing and to the teaching of writing.~~

~~Proposed course description: WRI3515 A study of both rhetorical theory and professional writing techniques, with application to the student's own writing and to the teaching of writing.~~

~~Rationale: The change reflects the actual teaching practice of the course.~~

.....

PROPOSAL II: ~~Add College Composition as a prerequisite to the Creative Writing courses, WRI220, WRI321, WRI322, and WRI323.~~

~~Rationale: Creative writing courses should not be taken without the necessary preparatory work in College Composition.~~

PROPOSAL III: ~~Remove WRI370, Writing Theory and Pedagogy, as a course option in the Writing Minor.~~

~~Rationale: WRI370 is a 2-unit course, currently appearing as one of many choices of upper division courses from which students choose three courses. All the other courses in the category are three-unit courses. Additionally, all students in the minor take WRI365, Writing for Business and Professional Careers, another three-unit upper-division course. If students were to select WRI370, a two-unit course, they would be one-unit under the University requirement of 12 upper-division units.~~
