PLNU Mission Statement: To Teach. To Shape. To Send.

Point Loma Nazarene University exists to provide higher education in a vital Christian community where minds are engaged and challenged, character is modeled and formed, and service becomes an expression of faith. Being of Wesleyan heritage, we aspire to be a learning community where grace is foundational, truth is pursued, and holiness is a way of life.

LJWL Department Mission Statement: Welcome to the Department of Literature, Journalism, Writing, and Languages. Embodying the core values of a Christian liberal arts education in the Wesleyan theological tradition, and focusing on the power of language and story to shape us and our world, the LJWL Department and programs will provide students with knowledge, skills, and experiences to equip them to understand, interpret, analyze, evaluate, and create texts as linguistic and/or artistic expressions of diverse human experiences. We value reading, writing, researching, speaking, and discussing as profound means of participating in the redemptive work of God in all of creation. The following document will provide you with the information sources and information guidelines to University and Departmental policies that apply to all courses taken in this Department.

Catalog Entry: Comprehensive instruction and guided workshop in writing poetry. Attention is also given to methodology in teaching poetry writing and to finding publication. May be repeated once for major credit with instructor's consent. Prerequisite: College Composition.

Course Description: Poems have been used to convey and preserve all sorts of human experience—from the most abstract ideas of love to the most physical details of how it feels to eat a plum. Poems may contain accounts of history, autobiography, fiction, or some mix of these. They are both visual and auditory creations. Perhaps most importantly, anyone can write poetry. Writing is not an innate gift; it is a skill to be learned and practiced. Athletes train, painters paint, and writers write to get better at their craft. In this course, you will develop the skills that are needed to both read and write poems well. We will discuss the components of poetry and read sample poems, and you will draft and revise several poems with the help of writing exercises, your personal journal, and our in-class workshops. After the first few weeks, we will especially focus on creating a cohesive collection of poetry, and some of the poets whose books we read will visit our class to talk with us about their writing process. You will also learn about literary journals that publish poetry and submit your own work for publication at the end of the semester.

Faculty and staff recognize that the diverse backgrounds and perspectives of their colleagues and students are best served through respect toward gender, disability, age, socioeconomic status, ethnicity, race, culture and other personal characteristics. In addition, the Department of Literature, Journalism, Writing, and Languages is committed to taking a leadership position that calls for promoting a commitment to diversity in and out of the classroom and in the practices of writing, journalism, and the study of literature and languages.

FERPA (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act) Policy: In compliance with federal law, neither PLNU student ID nor social security number should be used in publicly posted grades or returned sets of assignments without student written permission. This class will meet the federal requirements by distributing all grades and papers individually. Also in compliance with FERPA, you will be the only person given information about your progress in this class unless you have designated others to receive it in the “Information Release” section of the student portal. See Policy Statements in the undergraduate student catalog.

PLNU Academic Accommodations: If you have a diagnosed disability, please contact PLNU’s Disability Resource Center (DRC) within the first two weeks of class to demonstrate need and to register for accommodation by phone at 619-849-2486 or by e-mail at DRC@pointloma.edu. See Disability Resource Center for additional information.

PLNU Academic Honesty Policy: Students should demonstrate academic honesty by doing original work and by giving appropriate credit to the ideas of others. Academic dishonesty is the act of presenting information, ideas, and/or concepts as one’s own when in reality they are the results of another person’s creativity and effort. A faculty member who believes a situation involving academic dishonesty has been detected may assign a failing grade for that assignment or examination, or, depending on the seriousness of the offense, for the course. Faculty should follow and students may appeal using the procedure in the university Catalog. See Academic Policies for definitions of kinds of academic dishonesty and for further policy information.

For our class’s purposes, writing is collaborative, and creative writers share and borrow from each other all the time. There are ways to do this that are acceptable (such as taking suggestions from a workshop group), but there are also ways to use other people’s ideas or words in a way that is considered plagiarism (such as passing off somebody else’s work as your own). We will discuss this further in class.

PLNU Copyright Policy: Point Loma Nazarene University, as a non-profit educational institution, is entitled by law to use materials protected by the US Copyright Act for classroom education. Any use of those materials outside the class may violate the law.

PLNU Attendance and Participation Policy: Regular and punctual attendance at all classes is considered essential to optimum academic achievement. If the student is absent from more than 10 percent of class meetings, the faculty member can file a written report which may result in de-enrollment. If the absences exceed 20 percent, the student may be de-enrolled without notice until the university drop date or, after that date, receive the appropriate grade for their work and participation. See Academic Policies in the Undergraduate Academic Catalog.

B = Excellent work that exceeds the minimum requirements of the assignment; no major problems with logic, structure, and organization; very few grammar and punctuation errors.

C = Average work that meets the minimum requirements of the assignment; may have minor problems with logic, structure, and organization; may have some grammar and punctuation errors.

D = Poor work that does not fully meet the minimum requirements of the assignment; may have some problems with logic, structure, and organization; grammar and punctuation errors may hinder meaning.

F = Poor work that does not fulfill the assignment; may have serious problems with logic, structure, and organization; grammar and punctuation errors may obscure meaning.

Attendance & Participation: Because discussion will be an important part of our class, your regular attendance and participation are required for you to be successful. Your first two absences will not count against your grade, but use them wisely. For each additional absence, your total grade will be lowered by 3%; if you miss class more than 4 times (over 2 weeks), you will automatically fail this course. Coming to class unprepared, staring at a screen, or being disruptive in class will also count as an absence. If you already know that you'll be missing many classes due to some pre-existing schedule conflict, you should not take this course at this time. Also, since arriving late to class is distracting to your classmates (and to me), you are expected to arrive on time. Two late arrivals will count as one absence. Truly perfect attendance (with no tardies or absences of any kind—you were literally present for all of every class meeting) will earn you 1% of extra credit at the end of the semester.

Readings: Readings are due on the date they're listed in the course outline. Always bring your copy of the assigned reading to class with you for use in discussion. Read actively and make notes directly on the text and/or on the side.

Reading Quizzes: On days when reading assignments are due, I may give brief quizzes at the very beginning of class. They will often require short answers to a few questions, but they might occasionally require a longer answer to one question (in the form of a short essay). This will motivate you to do the assigned reading, and it is extra incentive to get to class on time. These quizzes cannot be made up later. You should keep all quizzes in a notebook or a folder, along with all of your class notes and other assignments. Save everything throughout the semester so that you can look back on previous work and build upon it. This will also allow you to keep track of your grade in the class and to ensure that my final calculations are accurate.

Student-Led Exercises: You will be responsible for leading the class in one writing exercise. You should come prepared with some sort of prompt: a model poem, a new form to try, an image, a current event, an object, a song... bring something that gives you the urge to write and might offer possibilities to the other writers in our course. (Example: Don't just tell us to think about crayons. Bring crayons for us to sniff and feel and see.) You'll introduce the exercise, and we'll write for 5-10 minutes. You'll be graded on preparedness and quality.

Recitation: Because poems especially demand to be heard and remembered, you will memorize and recite for the class one of our assigned poems (or see me to make arrangements for reciting part of an especially long poem). Your recitation should be practiced and nearly perfect. On the class period after your recitation, turn in a 1-2 page written reflection about the poem and your experience of memorizing and reciting it: how did memorizing the poem affect your understanding, interpretation, and/or appreciation of the poem?

Poems: You will turn in several early drafts of poems. Some of these will have assigned styles or content. Please bring a hard copy of your poem to class on the day it is due. If it is your day to have a poem workshopped, please also bring enough copies for everyone else in the class (12 currently). These early drafts need not be masterpieces, but they should not be sloppy. It should be clear that you worked on them extensively.

Final Chapbook: At your scheduled conference time, you will submit a project proposal, in which you will describe some sort of research, experience, theme, location, style, or other unifying element that will guide your writing for the rest of the semester. You will draft and revise at least 10 poems for this collection. At the end of the semester, you will turn in a final chapbook that includes a title, a brief (1-2 paragraph) introduction to your work, 10 well-revised poems, and a brief statement (footnote or endnote) for each poem on why/how you began, revised, and settled it.

Workshops: We will do workshops as a whole class and in small groups throughout the semester. You will be responsible for printing copies of your own poems for everyone in the class (12 currently). During workshops, we will thoroughly read, mark up, and discuss your poems. Your workshop grade will be based on your verbal participation and written comments.

Manifesto: Writers are always theorizing about writing. For this creative essay, you will attempt to answer a large question about poetry (what should poetry be or do? is it more like an essay or visual art or music? what is most important to avoid in poetry? why do you write poetry?). We will read sample manifestos and discuss their importance in the literary world. You'll receive more detailed guidelines for this later in the semester.

Literary Journal Presentation: Browse the lists of literary journals on www.pw.org. Visit some journals' websites, read sample poems, and look at their submission guidelines. Choose two journals that publish poetry and that seem to fit your own or a classmate's aesthetic. On presentation day, come to class prepared to give a one-minute talk about each journal you've chosen. Your presentation should include a handout that gives your classmates an overview of each magazine's aesthetic (including preferred writing styles), masthead (relevant editors), submission guidelines, web address, contact info, and anything else you think is useful.

Journal Submissions: On the final day of class, you will bring two complete literary journal submissions that we will mail together (or give me evidence of online submission before our final meeting). I will give you instructions and advice on cover letters/emails and other technical details of submissions later in the semester. For now, concern yourself with writing and revising to make your work as strong as it can be.

Paper Format: Early drafts of poems must be typed, in 12-point Times or Arial font, with one-inch margins, and in MLA format. Poems should usually be single spaced or spaced according to the design of the author. Essays should be double spaced. Electronic submissions will not be accepted, except when approved by me or as required by the assignment.

Final Exam: Attendance is mandatory. For your final, you will give a practiced, polished introduction to your chapbook and a reading of your work, 5-7 minutes total. You will be graded on the quality of your introduction and overall delivery.

Due Dates: Dates when assignments are due are listed on the attached course outline; all written assignments are due at the beginning of class. I highly encourage you to visit with me one-on-one during office hours to run project ideas, manifesto drafts, or any questions by me. Once an assignment receives a grade, there will be no further opportunities to revise for a new grade.

Late work is not acceptable. If unusual circumstances will keep you from completing an assignment on time, please make arrangements with me for an extension BEFORE the due date (or if you wake up sick, please email me ASAP with your assignment so it will not be counted late). Please complete all readings on time as well. All coursework must be completed by our final meeting.

Student-Directed Conferences: During the semester, you must meet with me on scheduled conference days to discuss your writing, reading, or whatever else you'd like. Dates for these mandatory conferences are on the course outline. This will be part of your attendance grade. Feel free to meet with me more often than this!

Extra Credit (in addition to perfect attendance): Writing events go on frequently at PLNU and in our larger San Diego community. Attend an author lecture, reading, or workshop and write a 1-2 page critical analysis and reflection over what was said and how you can apply it to your reading and/or writing. Due within one week of the event. This will earn you up to 5 points (up to 2 times).

Canvas: A copy of this syllabus and assignments for our course are online at <https://canvas.pointloma.edu>. You can access these course materials through the portal using your PLNU username and password.

PLNU Email: Your PLNU email account should be checked daily. This is the way that I will most frequently communicate with you outside of class, and it's also the way the university distributes important information.

Inclusive Language Statement: Because language is powerful and shapes the way we think, all public language used in this course, including written and spoken discourse, will be inclusive. This standard is outlined by all major academic style guides, including MLA, APA, and Chicago, and is the norm in university-level work. See the section on "Appropriate Language" at The Purdue OWL: <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/608/01/>.

Public Discourse: Much of the work we will do in this class is cooperative. You should think of all your writing and speaking for and in class as public, not private, discourse. By continuing in this class, you acknowledge that your work will be viewed by others in the class.

This syllabus is a contract. If you continue in this course, then you agree to comply with the class policies as stated here.
