EXORDIUM

Of all things the measure is man, of things that are that they are, and of things that are not that they are not.
 (Protagoras)

No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent.
 (John Donne)

He who asks questions is a fool for five minutes; he who does not ask a question is a fool forever.
 (Chinese proverb)

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.
 (Proverbs)

Man is a prisoner who has no right to open the door to his prison and run away.
 (Plato)

Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we shall die.
 (ancient Egyptian saying)

Carpe diem, quam minimum credula postero.
 (Horace)

This above all, to thine own self be true.
 (Shakespeare)

Man is by nature a political animal.
 (Aristotle)

To succeed in politics, it is often necessary to rise above your principles.
 (anonymous)

Honesty is for the most part less profitable than dishonesty.
 (Plato)

A lie told often enough becomes truth.
 (Lenin)

The ends must justify the means.
 (Matthew Prior)

The mind of each man is the man himself.
 (Cicero)

It is the man's own mind, not his enemy or foe, that lures him to evil ways.
 (Buddha)

Man is a reasoning animal.
 (Seneca)

Ours is not to reason why; ours is but to do and die.
(Tennyson)

Wisdom begins in wonder.
(Socrates)

Man is the symbol-using (symbol-making, symbol-misusing) animal inventor of the negative (or moralized by the negative) separated from his natural condition by instruments of his own making goaded by the spirit of hierarchy (or moved by the sense of order) acquiring foreknowledge of death and rotten with perfection.
(Kenneth Burke)

Technological progress has merely provided us with a more efficient means of going backwards.
(Aldous Huxley)

*What a piece of work is man!
how noble in reason!
how infinite in faculty!
in form and moving how express and admirable.
in action how like an angel!
in apprehension, how like a god!*
(Shakespeare)

*What is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou dost care for him?
Yet thou hast made him little less than God,
and dost crown him with glory and honor.
Thou hast given him dominion over the works of thy hands;
thou hast put all things under his feet, . . .*
(King David)

Is man an ape or an angel?
(Disraeli)

Justice consists of doing no injury to men; decency in giving them no offence.
(Cicero)

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.
(Jesus)

The only thing worse than suffering an injustice is committing an injustice.
(Plato)

Our character is what we do when we think no one is looking.
(H. Jackson Browne)

That which does not kill us makes us stronger.
(Neitzsche)

I want mercy not sacrifice.
(Jesus)

The person who aims at nothing is sure to hit it.
(anonymous)

I drank WHAT?
(Socrates)

OVERVIEW

What does it mean to be a human, a communicator, and a Christian? The exordium gives examples of linguistically constructed realities from different culturally and temporally situated perspectives. Each represents a particular ethos. It is important that we each understand our own perspectives, our own ethea, within the context of our chosen fields of communication endeavor. As we enter marketplace of ideas, it is imperative that we learn to identify the myriad global perspectives under which humans initiate communication actions. To that end, the major portion of this course is devoted to the examination of the perspectives, or the spheres of influence through which we interpret our social environments and ourselves, and how those influences affect our communication actions. I intend the course to posit relevant questions regarding life experiences and the meanings we derive from them, and to encourage you to examine and express those ideas/answers in a cogent and compelling manner.

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES

- You will consider the responsible and ethical practice of their disciplines in the community at large.
- You will display communication competence both verbally and nonverbally.
- You will pass a comprehensive oral examination

COURSE PROCEDURES

- I model this course as a graduate seminar oriented toward the Socratic/dialogic method. This is not, in other words, a lecture course. I will act as a moderator, a facilitator, a primer of the pump, if you will. It is essential that you actively participate in class discussions. The more you participate in the discussion the greater your benefit. You must, therefore, read the material and be prepared not only critically to discuss it, but to relate it to your own experience as well.
- Because we represent a number of distinct but related areas of the communication arts (i.e., Organizational & Management Communication, Media Communication, Applied Communication, Mass Communication, Societal Communication, Theatre, Rhetoric, etc.), we will adopt an interdisciplinary approach to knowledge. Interdisciplinarity may be defined as "a process of answering a question, solving a problem, or addressing a topic that is too broad or complex to be dealt with adequately by a single track, discipline, or profession" (Thompson & Newell, 1998). Interdisciplinary learning may then be defined as "inquiries which critically draw upon two or more disciplines and which lead to an integration of disciplinary insights" (ibid).

Student Responsibility:

It is the student's responsibility to maintain his/her class schedule. Should the need arise to drop this course (personal emergencies, poor performance, etc.), the student has the responsibility to follow through (provided the drop date meets the stated calendar deadline established by the university), not the instructor. Simply ceasing to attend this course or failing to follow through to arrange for a change of registration (drop/add) may easily result in a grade of F on the official transcript.

REQUIRED BOOKS:

- Buber, Martin. I and Thou. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1970.
- Buechner, Frederick. Telling the Truth: The Gospel as Tragedy, Comedy & Fairy Tale. San Francisco: Harper, 1977.
- Lewis, C. S. The Abolition of Man: How Education Develops Man's Sense of Morality. New York: Macmillan, 1955.
- O'Connor, Flannery. Mystery and Manners: Occasional Prose. New York: Farrar Straus Giroux, 1969.
- Percy, Walker. The Message in the Bottle: How Queer Man is, How Queer Language Is, and What One Has to Do With the Other. New York: Picador, 1975.
- Said, Edward. Representations of the Intellectual. New York: Vintage Books, 1994.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

- A. Each of you will be responsible for one major presentation (25 minutes for single, 35 minutes for a double). The presentation will incorporate the following components:

- 1) A discussion of the author (This only applies to the first presentation per book*) with sensory aid(s) (e.g., TV clips, film clips, recorded interviews, etc.) that both contextualizes him/her in an historical setting and draws inferences as to how that context influenced him/her;
- 2) An insightful synthesis of the reading's main points. Start from the understanding that all your classmates have read the material too; so please don't try to "teach" it. Also, please don't present an outline of the material; rather, personalize the ideas/ arguments of the author and present them to us in a dialogic manner (how is he or she speaking to you here and now);
- 3) Additional sensory aid(s) (e.g., TV clips, film clips, recorded interviews, artworks, songs, etc.) that you feel exemplify the context and perspectives of the work (Not directly about the work, but how does it analogically speak to you);
- 4) Several (i.e., 2-3) questions for class discussion: These questions should get the discussion started, not test you classmates. Thought questions, not exam questions.

- B. In addition to the presentation, you each will bring in and present one current news article that you feel relates to that week's readings. The articles should incite discussion regarding the ethical situations involved as they relate to the readings and current concerns of the class members. You will need to apply class readings to your everyday life and class discussion in a meaningful and compelling manner. The news stories need not be about the author or his/her material directly, but need somehow to explore the issues in their context today.

- C. Toward the end of the semester, you will each undergo a comprehensive oral examination. This entails me asking you dialogic questions related to the readings and you answering those and any follow-up questions without the aid of notes. The subject of the oral exam will be the material from the six books you read and discussed in class. The exam will be 30 minutes.

GRADE BREAKDOWN

As I have detailed above, the grading for this course will be determined in the following manner:

News Discussions	10%
Oral Presentation	40%
Life of Class	10% **
Oral Exam	40%

 The participation grade will be based on how fully you involve yourself in the life of the class.

GRADING SCALE

A: Indicates exceptional work that reflects deep thinking, superb creativity, individual incentive, and an extremely high level of intellectual attainment.

B: Indicates very good work that reflects a thorough understanding of theory and practice, but is somewhat lacking in strong individual incentive, thinking, and/or creativity.

C: Indicates work that reflects a satisfactory completion of the assignment as directed, but is lacking in thoroughness, individual thinking, and/or creativity.

D: Indicates work that, although passing, reflects a lack of understanding of theory and/or fails to fulfill the assigned tasks.

F: Indicates work that reflects an inability or unwillingness to do the assigned task.

Academic Accommodations:

While all students are expected to meet the minimum academic standards for completion of this course as established by the instructor, students with disabilities may require academic accommodations. At Point Loma Nazarene University, students requesting academic accommodations must file documentation with the Disability Resource Center (DRC), located in the Bond Academic Center. Once the student files documentation, the Disability Resource Center will contact the student's instructors and provide written recommendations for reasonable and appropriate accommodations to meet the individual learning needs of the student. This policy assists the University in its commitment to full compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities (ADA) Act of 1990, and ADA Amendments Act of 2008, all of which prohibit discrimination against students with disabilities and guarantees all qualified students equal access to and benefits of PLNU programs and activities.
