

Worship Arts Use of Evidence of Student Learning

Upon evaluation of the program, worship Arts has concluded that the summer ministry music experience has in fact contributed successfully to the students involved in it. The program offers opportunities for students to experience constant feedback from not only their peers but from the church leaders and camp directors they interact with during their experience. The summer is certainly not an easy one for our students, but after conducting this research we have found that even in the midst of difficult circumstances a good majority have claimed to see growth in their personal and ministry lives. We are extremely confident in the positive aspects of our program.

As far as changes are concerned the worship arts staff find that it needs to continue to improve its means of communication and organization in order to make information available to its students. We hope to continue receiving feedback from camps and camp directors to continue making improvements to our program. The majority of the camps gave good feedback but there is one that did not and we want to strive to meet the needs of every camp we interact with. Also structurally we find our model has continued to work as far as having three teams on average travel within the summer.
