PLNU Mission

To Teach ~ To Shape ~ To Send

Point Loma Nazarene University exists to provide higher education in a vital Christian community where minds are engaged and challenged, character is modeled and formed, and service is an expression of faith. Being of Wesleyan heritage, we strive to be a learning community where grace is foundational, truth is pursued, and holiness is a way of life.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Literature 2000: "Literature and Culture: Latin American Short Story" is a course designed as a "study of representative works of literature and cultural contexts." We will be reading and discussing short stories by a diverse group of writers who explore local and universal themes and issues through their fiction. Exploring various cultural contexts through fiction opens our eyes to other worldviews as well as to the unique style of Latin American writing (all works are translated from the original Spanish or Portuguese). By the end of this course, you will be familiar with the genre of the short story and the various contexts and countries that have produced such famous works.

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the time you complete this course, you will be able to:

1. Closely read and critically analyze texts in their original languages and/or in translation.
2. Recall, identify, and use fundamental concepts of literary study to read and discuss texts
 - a. Standard literary terminology
 - b. Modes/genres of literature
 - c. Elements of literary genres
 - d. Literary periods (dates, writers, characteristics, and important developments)
 - e. Extra-literary research
3. Connect the works with your own lives and with the social, cultural, and historical contexts of the works and their authors

FOUNDATIONAL EXPLORATIONS MISSION

PLNU provides a foundational course of study in the liberal arts informed by the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. In keeping with the Wesleyan tradition, the curriculum equips students with a broad range of knowledge and skills within and across disciplines to enrich major study, lifelong learning, and vocational service as Christ-like participants in the world's diverse societies and cultures.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

- Readings: Each story is on the calendar and must be read thoroughly (at least twice!) before the start of the class period. Annotate in the margins and bring all questions and comments for in-class discussions. Our goal is to bring the joy of reading into your lives or enhance it, as a lifelong skill that will benefit you and maintain your critical thinking skills. Also, please read the introductions to each author (these are considered part of the reading as well).

- Exams: You will complete a midterm and final exam. Both tests require the knowledge and study of the readings, discussions, literary terms, and in-class notes. The final is cumulative. No make-up exams are allowed.

- Critical paper: You will write a short critical analysis paper based on one or more of the stories or authors, or a specific theme that perhaps runs through various texts (style standard: MLA; 750-1000 words). You cannot pass the class without completing this paper plus the two exams. The paper will have a thesis paragraph and make use of at least 3 academic sources. Library services are available for help in this area, and there will be more detailed instructions for the paper in class and on Canvas.
- Group Presentation: In groups of 3-4, you will present to the class on an author (or authors) (and the cultural context of the story/country of the author), with a visual aid such as PowerPoint, Google Slides or Prezi. Each presentation is between 18-20 minutes (total), and the group will turn in a short breakdown of how each member of the group contributed to the work. Everyone in the group will receive the same group grade.
- Respect and participation: Your attendance requires active participation in discussion, as distraction-free as possible. We will show one another respect by listening closely, embracing varying perspectives on the issues brought up by the literature. Using your phone for purposes unrelated to class, falling asleep, disrespecting your classmates or your professor, will all result in a loss of participation points. In-class activities and being present cannot be made up at a later time. Please leave your cell phone in your backpack or pocket!

REQUIRED TEXTS

1. González Echevarría, Roberto, ed. The Oxford Book of Latin American Short Stories. 1st ed. Oxford and New York: Oxford University Press, 1997. ISBN: 0-19-513085-5
2. Handouts and links provided in class and on Canvas.

You will need to bring your anthology as well as a notebook and pen/pencil in order to take handwritten notes during class. This method will improve your retention and keep you free from distractions if you are not relying on a phone, iPad, or laptop. Arrive in class with the reading for that day complete, your stories annotated, your questions and comments prepared. In this manner, we can enjoy rich discussions and use our voices to express what we have learned and processed, as well as personal reflections relating to the fiction. Please include 1-2 written questions that you have about the text or author to help promote discussion in class.

The anthology The Oxford Book of Latin American Short Stories contains most of the reading assignments for the semester. I will also assign a second short story for some authors, and will include a link or PDF. Please bring those to class as well (on the days we discuss those stories). Students must check their PLNU email regularly for announcements. Canvas is required for study resources and other homework assignments.

STATE AUTHORIZATION

State authorization is a formal determination by a state that Point Loma Nazarene University is approved to conduct activities regulated by that state. In certain states outside California, Point Loma Nazarene University is not authorized to enroll online (distance education) students. If a student moves to another state after admission to the program and/or enrollment in an online course, continuation within the program and/or course will depend on whether Point Loma Nazarene University is authorized to offer distance education courses in that state. It is the student's responsibility to notify the institution of any change in his or her physical location. Refer to the map on State Authorization to view which states allow online (distance education) outside of California.

PLNU COPYRIGHT POLICY

Point Loma Nazarene University, as a non-profit educational institution, is entitled by law to use materials protected by the US Copyright Act for classroom education. Any use of those materials outside the class may violate the law.

PLNU ACADEMIC HONESTY POLICY

Students should demonstrate academic honesty by doing original work and by giving appropriate credit to the ideas of others. Academic dishonesty is the act of presenting information, ideas, and/or concepts as one's own when in reality they are the results of another person's creativity and effort. A faculty member who believes a situation involving academic dishonesty has been detected may assign a failing grade for that assignment or examination, or, depending on the seriousness of the offense, for the course. Faculty should follow and students may appeal using the procedure in the university Catalog. See Academic Policies for definitions of kinds of academic dishonesty and for further policy information.

PLNU ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATIONS POLICY

PLNU is committed to providing equal opportunity for participation in all its programs, services, and activities. Students with disabilities may request course-related accommodations by contacting the Educational Access Center (EAC), located in the Bond Academic Center (EAC@pointloma.edu or 619-849-2486). Once a student's eligibility for an accommodation has been determined, the EAC will issue an academic accommodation plan ("AP") to all faculty who teach courses in which the student is enrolled each semester. PLNU highly recommends that students speak with their professors during the first two weeks of each semester/term about the implementation of their AP in that particular course and/or if they do not wish to utilize some or all of the elements of their AP in that course. Students who need accommodations for a disability should contact the EAC as early as possible (i.e., ideally before the beginning of the semester) to assure appropriate accommodations can be provided. It is the student's responsibility to make the first contact with the EAC.

PLNU ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION POLICY

Regular and punctual attendance at all classes is considered essential to optimum academic achievement. If the student is absent from more than 10 percent of class meetings, the faculty member can file a written report which may result in de-enrollment. If the absences exceed 20 percent, the student may be de-enrolled without notice until the university drop date or, after that date, receive the appropriate grade for their work and participation. Specifically for our quad 1 class, we will have only 14 days of class. If you miss two days, I have the right to de-enroll you. If you miss 4 days or more, you will not be able to pass the class, per PLNU policy stated above. I will take off 20 points for each day missed (participation and activities in the class). Also, you must be in class the entire class period to receive credit for the day.
